Overview

The Transportation Security Administration (TSA) of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) has issued the Secure Flight Final Rule.

The TSA will determine if the information provided on a passenger matches a person on their "No Fly" or "Selectee" lists and will transmit results back to airlines. The new rule requires airlines (not travel agencies) to send passenger information on existing bookings 72 hours prior to departure, to be vetted against the TSA watch list in the effort to reduce the risk of a terrorist boarding a plane.

Modifications have been made to Trip Manager to collect the Full Name, Date of Birth and Gender to add into all PNRs.

In Phase II the following changes have been added:

- Traveler Redress Number – A number issued to travelers who are incorrectly selected for additional screening.
- Known Traveler Number – A number issued for travellers whose backgrounds have been checked.
- Masked Passport Numbers
- Additions to Profile Model for Known Traveler and Redress numbers
- Profile Management Additions
- File Conversion Additions

Customer Benefit

- Secure Flight Information collected once
- No passenger inconvenience at the airport

Detail and Customer Examples

Changes:

- Middle Name field on Secure Flight Information page has been changed to accept 1 to 30 characters.
- First Name field on Personal Information page has been changed to accept 1 to 20 characters.
- Gender and DOB data on Personal Information page and One Time Traveler page are no longer visible to the user.

Phase II New Changes:

New Redress Number and Known Traveler Number

When the traveler clicks Purchase Now, if they have not filled out the Secure Flight Information detail or clicked the Decline checkbox, the following screen will appear. The traveler will be required to either enter their data or check the Decline box to move forward. Traveler Redress or Known traveler numbers are optional since all travelers will not have these numbers.
